SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF WASHINGTON

New York Governor Who Is a Potential Candidate For the Presidency Pleads With His Friends To Lay Off, Boom Is Being Advanced Too Soon—Tiger's Chances Hurt By Inserting the Religious Issue—Real Question Covered Up By Smoke Screen.

Governor Alfred E. Smith has become convinced that his boom for the presidency is being overworked by his admirers, and he has requested them to cause no further publicity of any sort during the remainder of this year.

Governor Smith has found that anti-Catholics are sending out printed circulars carrying what he terms as unwarranted inferences concerning his public record. The burden of the charges is that the governor, when a member of the constitutional convention in 1915, sponsored a resolution designed to project a religious issue concerning the appropriation of state money for denominational schools.

That and other charges indicating prejudices against Roman Catholicism have brought the governor to the conclusion that during the next ten months the religious issue related to his candidacy will be stressed more largely in the southern states where the bulk of the Democratic electoral vote usually is given to the Democratic candidate than either the fact that he is a wet or that he is the most conspicuous leader of Tammany Hall.

The governor has assured his friends that in due time he will meet any charge his opponents, in either political camp, may bring against him, but it is too far in advance of the presidential campaign to discuss such matters at this time.

The printed record of the Constitutional convention proceedings show that, June 10, 1915, A. E. Smith, a member of the body, introduced a resolution empowering the legislature to make an appropriation in aid of denominational schools.

James L. Nixon, delegate from Buffalo, editor at the time of the Buffalo Commercial, introduced a resolution to repeal the article in the state constitution that exempted the realty of religious organizations from taxation. In a prepared speech he said religious bodies in Buffalo owned a vast amount of property exempt from taxation. The committee to which was referred his resolution reported it out of committee with only one dissenting vote. On the floor of the convention, after warm debate, it was beaten by a large adverse vote.

The first appearance of Mr. Nixon's resolution, before it went to the committee, prompted Mr. Smith to introduce his resolution. It provoked so much surprise that George W. Wickersham, former attorney-general of the United States, asked Mr. Smith the why and wherefore.

The present governor told him that it was introduced merely as a club to kill off the Nixon proposal, if Mr. Nixon ever asked for the discharge of the committee holding his resolution. Nixon did ask for such discharge, whereupon Mr. Smith served notice on his fellow delegates that he also would ask for the discharge of the committee on education from further consideration of his proposed amendment, so that it could be brought to a vote in the convention.

That threat caused the overwhelming defeat of the Nixon resolution, whereupon the governor—then plain Al Smith—said that his object had been attained, and that his own proposal was dead from that minute.

Governor Smith knows all about the propaganda inspired by anti-Catholics and he appears to be convinced that it is likely to be farther reaching than any other issue. The governor, his political advisers assert, thinks that the wet and dry issue is being made to camouflage the religious issue.

According to his friends, the governor is able to meet any issue involving his public record, but he is determined that so far as he himself is concerned the 1928 presidential campaign shall not start till next year.

RETURNS FROM CHURCH FINDS HUSBAND DEAD

James Dresbach Expired Suddenly Seated at Breakfast Table Sunday Morning.

James Dresbach, of 218 East Main street, died suddenly at his home Sunday morning just before noon. Mrs. Dresbach, who had been in attendance at the Presbyterian church, found her husband dead, lying on the floor when she returned home.

Apparently he was in good health. He was seated at the breakfast table when his wife left to attend church. A bruise on the side of his face showed that the spark of life had left his body suddenly and his body fell from the chair to the floor. He had not touched his breakfast and evidently had expired shortly after he had seated himself at the table.

James Dresbach was born in Pickaway township, December 25, 1869. He was a son of James A. and Mary Alexander Dresbach. He married Miss Eva Ludwig, a daughter of David Ludwig. One brother, John S. Dresbach of Pickaway township, survives.

Find 100-Foot Worms Off California Coast

Berkeley, Calif.—Species of sea worms classified as "amazing creatures," some of which are said to be 100 feet long, have been seen and studied in the Pacific ocean near San Diego by Prof. W. R. Coe, Yale university, as guest research worker at the University of California, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, at La Jolla, he reports.

These remarkable sea denizens, known by the scientific name "nemertans," have been examined by few biologists of the world. Doctor Coe is believed to be the only living scientist knowing much about them.

To zoologists the worms are especially notable for their length, some of the more common species extending a yard, their bodies being only a fraction of an inch in width. Certain of the nemertean species are reported to be longer than any known animal, 100 or more feet. Even the whale has not been found to reach quite that length, says Doctor Coe.

SAVING

Of $200 Made For Trip To France.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—Each veteran going to the Paris, France, convention of The American Legion, September 19th to 23rd, will be saved approximately $200 over the cost of a similar trip by concessions granted by railroad companies, steamship lines and foreign governments, it is estimated by Howard P. Savage, National Commander of the Legion. This monetary saving will be aside from the special inspirational entertainment and the pleasure of traveling with comrades of the World War.

Preparation of a special official American Legion Identification Certificate costing $1, that will take the place of the ordinary passport costing $10 and the expensive foreign visas, is now complete. This Legion Identification Certificate will allow the veteran the utmost freedom of movement in eighteen countries of Europe and will make a splendid souvenir.

Fifty per cent reduction on United States and Canadian railroads have been arranged, as well as many other savings.

Flowers in Pickle

Flowers can be preserved in their natural colors and shapes by a new method recently tested with good results.

A half-inch layer of white scouring grade sand is placed in a dish or similar receptacle, and the flowers are inserted stem downward and sprinkled over until the petals and blossoms are covered. The dish is then put in a warm dry place, and in about a week most of the blooms will be found perfectly dry.

CLAIMS BLOOD OF NOW EXTINCT RACE

Believed Only Survivor of Nah- Dah-Ko Tribe.

Anadarko, Okla.—Blood of an extinct race flows in the veins of Harry Shirley, believed to be the last of the Nah-Dah-Ko Indians, who attained a degree of civilization as long as four centuries ago.

His father, Pat Shirley, was a white trader, but his mother was a Nah-Dah-Ko. With his white wife and two children, Shirley lives on a farm near Anadarko. He is fifty-five years old.

Virtual annihilation of the Nah-Dah-Kos was completed when Shirley was four years old, and his knowledge of the fate of his people is vague. The band, which was a branch of the Caddo tribe, was not great in numbers, and he believes it was annihilated in an internecine war when he was a child. He was taken to Texas by his father when hostilities broke out, and did not return until the war ended.

The town of Anadarko is named for the vanished tribe. Legend has it that the elder Shirley's Irish pronunciation of the tribal name was responsible for the corruption of the name from Nah-Dah-Ko to Anadarko. Although the present town was not founded until 1901, an Indian agency of the same name was located near here as early as 1858.

The original home of the Nah-Dah-Ko band was in Louisiana. Records of a Spanish explorer reveal that in 1542 the Indians lived in houses, farmed extensively and owned cattle. They were driven westward by the encroachment of the white man and gradually lost their identity through absorption into other tribes and losses in warfare.

Sues Her Cousin for $20,000 Wedding Gift

New York.—Suit to secure a wedding gift of $20,000, alleged to have been promised her, has been brought by Mrs. Adela L. Condeau of Nice, France, against her cousin, Leon Schinas, multimillionaire cigarette manufacturer.

Relying on Schinas's alleged promise of a $20,000 gift, Mrs. Condeau, formerly Miss Adele L. Schratte of this city, charges she advanced her wedding date and married Rene Condeau, a bank clerk from Nice, in this city October 2, 1926.

Schinas, in his reply, said the money was not to be paid within a year after the marriage.

FARM LABOR IN OHIO SHOCK CORN FOR FATTENING CATTLE

Farm labor in Ohio is becoming scarce, although it commands a higher wage when compared with former days and when compared with the prices of farm products in the state, according to J. I. Falconer, chief of the department of rural economics, Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Some 50 per cent of Ohio farms hire no labor, about 25 per cent hire for somewhat less than a year's time, while the other 25 per cent hire one or more men the year around. This is only about one-half the amount of hired labor on Ohio farms that there was in 1910.

The prices received for farm products advanced more rapidly than farm wages and more rapidly than city wages up to 1920. Following 1920 farm wages fell with the price of farm products. For a time since 1920 city wages showed a slight tendency to decline, then to rise, and by 1926 they had reached a level higher than that of 1920.

It is the high wages paid in city employment and the low price received for farm products, as stated by Dr. Falconer, that has attracted labor from the country to the city and made it difficult for the country to pay correspondingly high wages.

New Diamond Fields
Attract Farm Labor

Pretoria, Transv. ad.—More than 60,000 Europeans and 120,000 natives are working on the newly discovered diamond fields in the Lichtenburg area, according to Dr. H. A. Lorentz, Dutch consul general here.

The lure of lucky strikes is responsible for a great dearth of farm labor, and Lichtenburg farmers are bewailing the fact that kaffirs cannot be induced to do farm work when they can earn 30 shillings a week in the diamond fields.

No less than 43 per cent of the diggers belong to the agricultural classes, and only nine per cent are diamond miners by trade.

Curious tales of fortune hunting abound. Some who believed they had the richest claims suffered disappointment, while, on the other hand, an old man who sat down when he saw he was being beaten in the race for claim pegging, dug where he sat and struck a rich patch.

In another case a digger cursed when he sprained his ankle, falling over a tuft of grass, but later discovered that he had fallen on a claim that is now panning out rich.

Lace Is Popular;

All Shades of Blue Featured; Points of Interest in Spring Fashions.

"Now is the time when fashion breaks into print," comments the style forecast of Fashionable Dress Magazine, which also calls attention to the popularity of lace, the featuring of all shades of blue, and the rising waistline, in an article herein summarized.

Printed frocks, coats, blouses, parasols and innumerable bandings appear this spring, according to this article. Many dresses in solid colors adopt prints for trimming in the vestee, ties, sash, or jabot. Prints combined with plain cloth are also popular in the compose costumes in the role of the sleeveless underdress, the blouse or the underbodice of a bolero.

"With prints restricted more or less to daytime wear, laces have chances galore to shine in the evening," announces the magazine, in commenting on the use of cre lace for dresses notably in black, but also in colors. Lace for trimming, in addition to its popularity with chiffon in dance and dinner dresses, becomes more and more important as a decoration for day wear. Cream lace is very successful on black faille or satin. Besides the cream lace forming yokes, sleeve puffs, cuff and tie ends on black and navy blue dresses, laces are used considerably on rose and green dresses, in these lighter shades frequently being dyed to match.

Waistlines are rising, and are usually defined by wide or narrow belts, tie sashes, or crush girdles. "The double waistline," remarks the writer, "effects an artful compromise with two belts, one placed at normal and the other several inches lower down." This treatment is even used on soft evening dresses.

The berth collar is again in favor with the round neck and modified bateau outline. A chiffon dinner and dance frock with this collar finishing at the shoulder in drapery like a jabot, caught with a two-tone chiffon flower, and a tiered skirt terminating in drapery to match the berth, is also described.

Fabric flowers for the shoulder frequently appear, often combining both materials of the ensemble in the boutonniere.

Bows in Spring Frock
in Keeping With Mode

Yola d'Avril, motion picture actress, in a scene from "Orchids and Ermine," is seen wearing a smart beige georgette frock possessing many interesting features of the spring mode. The skirt is ornamented with pointed tabs of the georgette, while the blouse is made important by the artistic placing of a bow on one shoulder, one long tab in front and one hanging behind.

Culotte Skirt Is Name of New Trouser Costume

Almost every dressmaker of importance in Paris shows at least one trouser-skirt dress in summer collections.

Culotte skirts is the name the French prefer for the latest attempt at trousers for women. The trouser skirt is disguised by an inverted box plait in the front which only discloses the true nature of the skirt when its wearer is in brisk motion.

One of Jenny's trouser-skirt dresses is black rep with a white georgette vest embroidered in black. There are black faille revers and high pointed cuffs of white on this most unmasculine trouser dress.

The light is then turned on the part of the city where the theft was committed.

Unequal

Perhaps one reason so many marriages go wrong is that so often one of the life partners is merely working for the other.

Capital "Beauty" Plans Prove Aid to Parking

Washington.—Some decided contrasts between the old and the new are being furnished as the capital gets down to the actual work of beautifying the downtown section, parts of which for years have been a constant irritant to those artistically inclined.

In the block adjoining the massive Post Office department building, whose foundations inclose labyrinth of cellars below the ground, an entire city block occupied by stores and other business houses was razed, and not a single basement was disclosed.

When the brickwork and other walls were removed, a job requiring a very short time, the ground beneath was found to be so smooth that it was immediately pre-empted by motorists as a place where automobiles might be left indefinitely without the dread of finding them ticketed for parking too long.

FOUND IN WESTERN CANADARare Specimen Is Discovered by Archeologists' Party in British Columbia.

Hazelton, B. C.—While there may not have been beauty parlors in the prehistoric days, the Indian braves
and belles who inhabited what is now central British Columbia had their own methods and appliances for enhancing their charm.

The "rouge and cosmetics" used were obtained from natural coloring materials, but a discovery made here recently shows that hand mirrors also existed in their days. The discovery was made by a dominion archeologists' party in the prehistoric part of the ancient Gitkean village site, immediately below Hazelton, of one of the extremely rare stone mirrors known to have been used by the totem pole
Indians of the Skeena valley area.

The specimen is a thin slab of black stone, one end of which is narrowed for a handle, and the other end has its flat surface highly polished. One of the older Hazelton Indians demonstrated to the archeologists how this was used. The mirror surface was wet and when this is done the polished surface actually reflects the human face so clearly that individual hairs and the color of the eyes are dis-cernible.

The specimen secured is being sent to the national museum at Ottawa for preservation among the prehistoric Indian relics.

Lure Birds to Death

New York.—The tale of the fate of a large flock of birds in the dense fog outside New York was told by officers of the liner Ebro when it arrived from the west coast of South America.

The liner dropped anchor off Ambrose Lightship.

"It was a little after midnight," said Captain Ellis Roberts. "I was sitting in my quarters when suddenly the air was filled with the fluttering of wings and voices of birds.

"I got up and looked out. There,
coming out of the gray curtain of fog thousands upon thousands of birds appeared within the radius of our ship's lights. There were wrens, robins, sparrows, starlings and many other types, but not a single seagull.
"These birds dashed themselves against the sides of the ship and the
lighted portholes, hundreds of them
stunned or dead.

"The birds came out of the south and were probably on their annual migration north when they lost their bearings in the fog."

for Misleading Ads

Berlin, Germany.—Jail sentences
are being urged by the Retail Dry Goods association for shopkeepers who indulge in fraudulent or misleading advertising to attract trade.

The action is directed especially against those stores which are perpetually "going out of business" or
"moving to larger quarters" or being
"slightly damaged by fire."

Existing federal statutes covering false advertising have never been enforced, the association asserts, and the hot sales methods of numerous small shops are beginning to reflect discredit
on the whole dry goods trade. Newspapers are urged to refuse advertising from unreliable stores.

600 Wreaths on Grave
of Hungary's Godmother

Szekesfeharvar, Hungary.—Six hundred wreaths were placed on her grave and a tree bearing 570 burning candles was planted nearby when Maria Molnar, eighty-nine, of this village was buried.

Each candle represented a child to whom Maria had stood godmother.
Two hundred and ninety she had held in her arms while the priests christened them and 280 she had sponsored on their confirmation day.

She was known locally as "Hungary's godmother." At her funeral all of her godchildren who are still living took part, each bringing a wreath and a candle. The 30 remaining wreaths were added by friends.

"Jim," 77, Steps 12 Miles
When He Needs Exercise

Norway, Mich.—Although "Jim"
Bailey is seventy-seven years old, he claims he can "step out" and walk many miles with most anybody. Just to prove his mettle he often walks 12 miles, from this city to Loretto. "Jim" refuses to ride in automobiles, he says,
when he is out for a little limbering-up exercise. He doesn't even stop to rest on the way.

"Old Jim" is a retired miner, is a bachelor. He says he doesn't know whether that accounts for his being able to hike like he does and when asked why he never married, "Jim"
replied: "Well, I never stood still long enough for Cupid's arrow to hit my heart."

been laying a double yolked egg every day. This particular egg measures 0 3/4 x 6 3/4 inches. Inside the large shell is a yolk and albumen, and also an other egg which has a hard shell.

SHAFT IN 2 YEARSSponsors in Washington Seek
More Funds in Congress.

Washington.—Obstacles which for fifteen years have blocked the erection in Washington of a statue commemorating the 1,500 victims of the Titanic disaster are slowly being cleared away. Members of the Woman's Titanic Memorial association hope that their objective will be reached in another two years.

Organized shortly after the disaster
in 1912, the association promptly raised more than $40,000 for the memorial, but it was not until 1917 that a bill authorizing use of public grounds for the purpose got through the legislative jam in congress. Then the site which had been selected was denied.

A new site was chosen, on the Potomac near the ground dedicated to the Lincoln memorial, and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney of New York went ahead with completion of the statue
from a design approved by the Fine Arts commission several years earlier.

The new site was under water, but plans had been made for construction of a sea wall as part of the program for linking Potomac and Rock parks.

Appropriations for the wall were hard to get, however, and work on it
had to be suspended in 1922, after only part of the riprap foundation had been put in. The last congress granted $25,000 for resumption of the work, but that was enough to provide for little more than repairs on the old foundation. Engineers estimated that another $175,000 would be needed.

Mrs. William Howard Taft is interested in the plan, which is under the guidance of Mrs. John Hays Hammond, first secretary of the association, and Mrs. Robert S. Chew.

These women are confident that the necessary appropriation will be granted by the next congress and that soon afterward they will be able to complete their task.

Impervious to Vaccine

Manchester, England.—A cold in the head is still a cold in the head at the Manchester university, where for seven months experiments have been going on to determine the value of vaccination. Two hundred and eighty-six persons took part in the test.

The conclusion that vaccination against colds has no preventive value was suggested by the results of an experiment carried on by Dr. A. F. C.
Davey, Dr. F. R. Ferguson and Dr.
W. W. C. Topley.

Students and members of the university staff offered their services for the experiment. Of these 138 were inoculated with a stock vaccine containing eight different kinds of microbes, and 148 were not inoculated.

Results showed that the 138 inoculated persons had 203 colds, the 148 uninoculated subjects had 163 colds during the period of the test and that the average duration of the colds
among the inoculated was 13 days and among the others ten and one-half days.

The investigators, however, concluded that the evidence does not justify with certainty any conclusion that vaccine caused any harm.

of Egypt"

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

"I DO NOT require impossibilities," Acton said loftily. "Only the girl I marry must be wholly unsophis-ticated."

Surely she'll be among the loneliest works of God," Elizabeth countered.
"Only think how your vast experience will bore her."

"H-m! Does it ever bore you?"
Acton demanded, flushing.

She laughed softly, nodding. "More times than I care to remember."

"I shall certainly spare you such annoyance in future," Acton all but snorted, looking down at her.

That made her giggle outright before answering: "Stop fibbing, Johnny
—you do it so lamely. You know you'll never cease from coming Sunday nights—unless you find somebody that makes better waffles and fried peach pies than I do."

"You will see!" from Acton idly.

When her caller had almost slammed
the door behind him, she lay full length upon the fine old sofa, looking outspread above her face, hands hard at her rosy taper fingers, the while she said to her image in the mantel mirror: "Praise be if the medicine works. You," tapping two fingers, "have really earned the Acton diamond. With malice aforethought
—you knew all the time the way to read your title clear to all the Acton emoluments was by the gate of their owner's palate. I wonder how you endured the drudgery two whole years—but not quite as much as I wonder what set you to speaking truth!"

"No mystery at all," a girl's voice said through an opening inner door.
"A good-bad reason—it wears trousers, and answers to the name of Curly Dan—and comes without waiting to be called—"

"And owns the loveliest, the most virgin ignorance—listens as if Solomon himself were speaking when you open your mouth—or even me—at a pinch," Elizabeth broke in, sitting up, her eyes dancing, wild roses in her cheeks. "Best of all—he's not even a genteel pauper—it warms your heart to watch him eat—you know he needs Sunday feed to carry him
through a week at the parsonage."

"Wonder why he stays there?" May,
the new-comer, said reflectively.

"Because of those poor children—they half starve with him helping out —would whole-starve, I do believe, if he left—"

"Who's the phenomenon?" from a slim tall fellow, standing upright in the outer door.

May looked reproach, saying:
"Small boys should know better than to ask foolish questions—especially if they answer themselves."

"Lovely singing birds, who's been feeding you pepper?" Curly Dan—otherwise Daniel Maury, Esq., demanded, holding fast a hand of each girl. "Sit down—and give me the advice I need."

"Then—fire away!" Elizabeth ordered, shaking her fist at him.

"It's—it's only—I've come into money—nothing to speak of really—still—I'm not any more a pauper—
with an appetite—it was only in the appetite way I came near your friend Acton—"

"Don't name him! The pig!" Elizabeth ejaculated viciously.

"A nice fat pig," Dan teased. "Met him on my way here—he was swearing hard enough to take his appete-tide—"

"As if anything could," May murmured.

Curly Dan ran on: "He was crying almost as hard as he was cussin'— about how cruelly he'd been deceived in—one of you. Now—I want to know who's the guilty person—"

"Oh! We went half and half," his listeners said tranquilly.

"Sure?" he asked. "Well! That puts me in a fix sure enough. You see I meant to reward the guilty person with some part of my new wealth
—and ask the other to take me—just as I stand, plus $5,000."

"Quite a sum! One might easily have less," Elizabeth said primly.

"Willin' to risk it?" from Curly Dan.

"Oh! I might!" she nodded.

May gave her a gentle smack on the right cheek, saying: "Take that for your duplicity. Miss Quincy! You know it took Dan plus the grace of God to save you from becoming Mrs.
John Thomas Acton."

"You, of course, want to make sure of the Capital Prize!" Elizabeth flung back aggressively.

Thereat Dan laughed uproariously,
crying: "Don't fight! Capital aplenty for all the family. Counting us three equal partners, we're rolling in wealth
—rich enough to endow those poor alley brats, feed, clothe and educate them—and leave us enough in hand to go galling around the world long enough and strong enough to tie the equator in bow-knots."

"Let's go! When do we begin cash-ing in?"

Curly Dan looked thoughtful. "Not
for another month," he said. "A fine poor man's appetite is too precious to be sacrificed suddenly. Only think, though—it came near spoiling everything. Nights when I was so hungry
I lay awake planning to murder Acton.
Now I'm convinced that as a root of evil the love of money don't compare with the lack of it."

"All's well that ends well," from
May, oracularly.

"Make it unanimous," cried Dan,
putting his arms about Elizabeth.

Diet for Mentally Ill

Because mental illness is a disorder
of the entire individual and not merely of the mind, the diet should be prescribed with the same care concerning proper balance and vitamin content as in physical illness, declares Dr. L. D. Hubbard in Hygeia Magazine. Mental defectives, even idiots, do not appear to suffer greatly from dietary errors.

Deep Sea Facts

In the depth of the seas there is eternal winter, with a temperature at

by the fitful gleams of phosphorescent light. There is absolute calm and silence and no scenery, but a succes-dunes.

WE SAY IT WITH

AMUSEMENTS

Marion Davies Hollandaise — a piquant foreign creation that is alluringly new—that's the new Marion Davies in "The Red Mill," new Cosmopolitan spectacle now playing at the Met theater. The much-heralded adaptation of the famous stage hit scored instant popularity with its quaint settings, a spectacular winter fete, dramatic intensity intermingled with lightsome comedy—and Marion Davies' faultless acting of a role unlike any in her entire career.

One associates Marion Davies with gowns—with costumes—with plays like "Beverly of Graustark" or "Light of Old Broadway." But here is a new one—Marion Davies in pigtails and wooden shoes.

Her talents as a comedian have the best opportunities they have had to date, and she makes the most of them, in the skating scenes where she drops to disaster and a frozen face the struggle with the patent American ironing board that invades the sacred precincts of her Holland kitchen, and other hilarious details.

These add uproarious entertainment to a story that is gripping in its heart interest—the story of a little Dutch kitchen slavey who is catapulted into society and a strange love affair—who adventures with ghosts in a haunted mill and upsets a Holland town—all for the love of an Irish tourist with a comedy valet and a green necktie.

William Goodrich directed the new story from a scenario by Frances Marion, based on the noted comic opera by Victor Herbert and Henry Blossom. Owen Moore plays the Irish hero in a debonnaire style that is appealing in its charm; George Siegman, famous screen villain, is as bad as ever in the role of the sinister "Uncle Willem." Louise Fazenda and Karl Dane make an amusing comedy team in the new production, and Fred Gambold, William Orlamond, Russell Powell and other well known favorites are included in the cast.

Seven hundred people are seen in the glittering winter festival scene and other elaborate details in the quaint Dutch village in which the action of the new play takes place.

One-Man Tugboats Now Being Used on West Coast

Anacortes, Wash.—Man power is too valuable these days for duplication, so one-man tugboats for towing have gained favor. Towing conditions on the British Columbia coast and in Puget sound are causing the change in methods. Navigation laws require boats of over 32 feet length and nine feet beam to carry certified captains.
There is no limit to the power equipment. Thus 30-foot boats are being fitted with 45 to 100 horsepower oil engines and one man does the tending, steering, planting the towlines and stands watch.

New Discovery Will Save Guinea Pigs

Denver, Colo.—Lives of millions of guinea pigs, hitherto known as the "test tubes" of tuberculosis, probably will be saved in the future, thanks to a discovery made in the laboratory of the Denver Jewish hospital.

For years guinea pigs were the only known medium for producing tuberculosis bacilli for experimental inoculations. Not only were thousands of the animals sacrificed to science, but thousands of dollars were spent in raising them in hospitals throughout the country.

After months of experimentation, Dr. H. J. Carper, director of the Denver institution, was able to produce the tuberculosis germs through the use of a specially treated potato medium.

One hundred tests, Doctor Carper said, now may be made with the potato germs at the cost of one where germs from guinea pigs were used.

Headed that the germs from the potato culture are in daily use in the Denver hospital and that he expected their use to become universal within the next few months.

Hen's Eggs Sell at Rate of $300 a Dozen

Vancouver, B. C.—Three eggs laid by "Maizie" world's champion hen owned by the University of British Columbia, have been sold to a Texas poultry breeder for $25 apiece or at a rate of $300 a dozen, according to an announcement by Prof. Everton A.
Lloyd. The "miracle" hen recently broke all previous records by producing 351 eggs in a 365-day test.

"This is the highest price ever paid for a hen's eggs," said Professor Lloyd. "If the entire set of 351 eggs had been sold at $25 apiece, the pullet's production for the year would have been worth $8,775."

"Maizie's" record in the egg laying contest was four eggs ahead of the world's previous high mark held by an Australian bird which laid 347 eggs in a year's official test. The former record held in North America was established by a pullet at the Puyallup (Wash.) experiment station, which laid 335 eggs in 365 days.

Scientific poultry breeding, it is pointed out, is improving the standard of Canadian flocks. Some of the finest birds on the continent are said to be owned in the Dominion. Poultry is becoming an important farm sideline in western Canada. New settlers entering the mixed farming areas find hens profitable. Elimination of nonlayer and scrub stock from the barnyards is helping to develop the industry.

Propaganda Had Its Birth in Ancient China

Washington.—Although it took a World war to develop it into an element of everyday life, propaganda, like powder and printing, was produced in China long before Europe became aware of its possibilities.

Emperor Chieng Lung, who ruled over China in the Eighteenth century, wanted his people to believe that his domain embraced the world. So he had printed a book in which 42 European peoples and 231 tribes were represented as paying tribute to him, this being shown not only through the text but with engravings.

His book is included in a Chinese collection on exhibition at the Congressional Library, which also embraces a few volumes printed in the Twelfth century, 800 years before the art of printing was developed in Europe.

Bestow Garlands on Virtuous Poor Girls

Paris.—The best girls of France are being crowned with wreaths of rosebuds and awarded money prizes.

Usually this presentation is the big event of a Sunday ceremony organized for the distribution of various local prizes. Some are for long service, others for special achievement of many kinds.

The prize for virtue dates back to the year 525. St. Medard, bishop of Noyon, is by tradition given credit for initiating a public fund out of his own property to supply the prize money.

The custom spread through the centuries, and it is observed still, mostly in northern France.

Generally the prize is awarded to a poor girl who supports a family.

Fathers Have Best Records as Voters

Chicago.—Father holds the best record as a voter. Next in regularity at the polls come sons and daughters, with mother trailing at the rear.

The National League of Women Voters found that out after making a study of citizens' voting habits in five states. The findings were made public recently by the Illinois league.

It was determined that women use the vote much less than men. Other findings were:

Middle-aged persons have the largest voting percentage; young people the lowest. The better the education the higher the voting percentage of the group. A very small per cent of the total eligible voters never use their vote.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR DEAD IN THE FRATERNITY

Knights of Pythias Decorate Graves of Those Who Have Gone Before With Beautiful Blossoms of Spring—Judge C. C. Williams Was Orator of the Day And the Boys' Band, of Springfield, Furnished the Music.

Philos Lodge, 64, Knights of Pythias, held memorial services for their dead Sunday afternoon at Forest cemetery.

The beautiful custom of placing flowers and a triangle of myrtle on the lasting resting place of members of the order is observed annually and Sunday was the 64th year of the Pythian period.

The members of the order and their auxiliary, the Pythian Sisters, gathered at their lodge room promptly at the appointed time and at two o'clock, the parade, headed by the Boys' band of the Pythian Children's Home at Springfield, formed in line and marched to the cemetery where Judge Curtis C. Williams of Columbus, grand chancellor, made the address of the day.

Ritualistic work preceded the address of the grand chancellor. The members formed a triangle and stood at attention bareheaded thru the exercises. There were 110 members in line and they were followed in autos filled by the Pythian Sisters, who alighted when they reached the cemetery. Miss Laura Mantle was the color bearer.

Judge Williams said, in part:
"In this sylvan home of the dead, we gather to pay our tribute of love and affection. It is fitting that we recall their virtues and pay our respect to them. We meet in fond recollection of those who have passed beyond, we remember them as we saw them in the lodge room, we remember them as fellow citizens.

Pythias, after whom this order is named, may have never lived or died, or not have lived at all, but his name will live on, and his principles will live forever in the memory of this organization. Friendship, Charity and Benevolence are the cardinal points of this order. There are other fraternal organizations which are good, but none have higher principles than Pythians.

On a day like this, we should consider our duties as citizens, the obedience of law, is the highest ideal of citizenship. In this day of uncertainty and unrest good citizenship exemplifies itself in patriotism. This patriotism is best fostered by Friendship, Charity and Benevolence thru this order.

The speaker closed with this poem:
"Three golden arrows in the quiver, filled else with deeds of strife, Three sunny islands in the river, the rapid stream of life,

Three stars in Heaven's gem decked attire that never fade or dim Three harp notes in the spirit lyre that angels love to hymn.

Three blossoms from the land of flowers to cheer the fainting soul Three rays of beauty from the bowers beyond life's utmost goal.

Three strains of rapturous music swelling around the burial sod Three pillars in the Holy dwelling in the temple of Our God."

Notes.

The Boys' band from the Pythian Children's Home, which was under the leadership of W. G. F. Shulze, was composed of twenty-two members.

Members of the order were present from Washington C. H., New Holland, Stoutsville, Ashville, Williamsport, Chillicothe and Harrisburg.

L. E. Gayman, superintendent of the Pythian Children's Home made an address at the Castle hall on the return to the city. He said when he took charge, he gave the home the motto; "Character, Education and Protection" and that in his government every one connected with the home must live up to this motto.

There are 235 boys and girls in the home. Grand Chancellor Williams paid a loving tribute to the past Grand Chancellor J. D. Clark, who had lived a life of service and sacrifice. He was a member of the Ohio Industrial commission.

Work and Bolshevism

Not Closely United

Secretary Frank Morrison of the praising labor's repudiation of Bol-

"Look at what the demagogues of said, "are doing in Europe. Look at a story from China the other day.

AT LEAST HOPED TO SAVE HIS CARRIAGE

Charlie Chaplin in an interview in New York told some stories about mercenary, grasping women.

"And then there was Rachel—so one of his stories ran—"Rachel, you know, the great French actress.
As far as grasping goes, Rachel would be hard to beat even today.

"Rachel dined one night with the rich Count Duchatel. There was a magnificent silver epergne in the middle of the table and she persuaded the count to present it to her. Afterward, to save cab fare and to be sure that the count wouldn't change his mind about the epergne, she got him to send her home with it in his own carriage.

"The priceless epergne," she said,
'will be safer' this way than in a public cab."

"Yes, yes, quite so," said the count, with a rather nasty laugh, as he escorted her across the sidewalk —for he knew he'd been done. 'But you'll be sure to send me back my carriage, won't you?'"

A Man's Man

Abraham Lincoln has always been our favorite American statesman, but since learning from no less a historical authority than our Mr. McKee himself that James Madison did more than any of our great Americans to introduce and popularize long trousers to take the place of knee breeches, we feel, what with our legs and all, that perhaps we have underestimated this great man's service to his country.—Ohio State Journal.

Bees Saved a Missionary

While Cantonese soldiers were looting the home of Doctor Macklin, American missionary, they found behind the house a number of mysterious white boxes which they believed contained valuables. PROPER CHOICE

Of Shoes Makes the Feet Look Smaller.

A decided improvement in the appearance of one's feet can be made by the proper choice of shoes, points out Eileen Bourne in an article in this week's Liberty. "Every woman's problem," she explains, "is to reconcile health and comfort with style and good looks. For fashionable appearance the ideal feet are small and narrow, with slim, high instep and short toes. A few of us possess them, but the rest of us must pick and choose our shoes.

"The woman with fat instep and thick ankle," Miss Bourne continues, "looks best in oxfords and strapless pumps. She of the fat instep should wear as high a heel as comfort permits. Feet distorted by bunions need shoes cut high. For this disfigurement and for any foot broad at the ball, a colonial style is the most flattering. Short vamps—but never too short—are best for the long, thin foot. Strapped pumps also reduce the size of a foot. Shoes deeply cut out, light-colored, or fancy street shoes are suitable only for small, well shaped feet. Find what style suits your foot and stick to it."

Get Rid of Grudge

There's nothing on earth that gives you more trouble, and less value for your trouble, than a personal grudge. If you have one, don't feed it; starve it.—Youth's Companion.

WOMEN SMOKERS

Women may be seen smoking in almost all public places in New York, but that liberty is sometimes curtailed as soon as the city limits are passed. On one of the principal railroads women who invade the masculine precincts of the smoking car are politely but firmly requested by the trainmen to leave.

Four tables of players were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. Robert Denman last evening when she complimented Miss Ruth Young, fiancée of Mr. Walter Denman with an evening bridge party. Her home was decorated in the season's flowers with pink roses and lilies predominating. At the conclusion of the game Miss Young was presented with a beautiful gift and Mrs. Wilmer Boston, Mrs. W. H. Nelson and Mrs. Earl Price received prizes. Mrs. Wilmer Boston of Sunbury, Ohio, was an out-of-town guest.

When Mrs. R. F. Lilly and Mrs. Frank Kline Jr. entertained with a dinner-bridge at their home in Watt street last evening honoring Miss Evelyn Teegardin whose marriage to Mr. Dwight Steele will be solemnized next Wednesday, their home was artistically decorated in the most beautiful flowers of the season. Roses and lilies decked the rooms and a trellis of the same beautiful flowers enhanced the mantles in the living rooms. Centering the twelve small tables where the dinner was served were pompons of pastel shades tied with butterfly bows of the same hue and on which miniature butterflies were perched. The nut cups were of the same shade as the centerpiece and were decorated with the tiny butterflies. The place cards and tallies also carried out the color scheme. At the conclusion of the game Mrs. I. F. Boggs and Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker were awarded prizes and Miss Teegardin was given a lovely guest prize. Mrs. Milton Cayce, of Wellington, Ohio, and Miss Maxine Rowe, of Pueblo, Colo., were out-of-town guests.

The Business and Professional Women's Club will be entertained with a six o'clock dinner at the home of Miss Mary Connor in Pinckney street Tuesday evening, June 21st.

Fooled Old Gentleman

The lazy boy came in, mopping his face furiously. "There," said his father, proudly. "I always said you'd learn to work some time. Here's a dollar for you. Now tell your old dad what you've been doing." The boy grinned as he pocketed the dollar. "I ran all the way home from grandpa's because he said if he could catch me he was going to make me weed the garden."—The Outlook.

TRUCK DRIVER IS KILLED BY N. & W. TRAIN

Evans B. Day, 46, single, Toledo, truck driver for the R. M. Duke Construction Co., was instantly killed at the Omega N. & W. crossing at 11:30 a. m. Friday, when he drove a loaded truck into the path of a south bound passenger train.

His body, badly mangled, was removed to the McMillan undertaking establishment, Waverly, at the order of Coroner Dan J. Wilson, who presided over an inquest Friday afternoon.

Day was engaged in C. & H. construction, hauling gravel from Omega for the H. W. Nelson Co. No watchman is provided at the crossing and it is presumed that Day was not aware of the approach of the passenger train until it was too late.

James Day, the victim's father, resides at Leipsic, O. The train, No. 16, was in charge of Conductor William Smith, of Columbus.

Of Farm Fire Loss Preventable Is Report of National Safety Council.

More than 90 per cent of the $150,000,000 yearly fire loss on farms throughout the United States is preventable, according to a recent survey. Fully 50 per cent is the result of absolute carelessness while 40 per cent is due to semi-carelessness in the use of improper lamps and stoves or to the absence of any fire prevention equipment.

Safety first campaigns conducted by the National Safety Council and installation of properly placed lightning rods and non-explosive gasoline lamps, lanterns and stoves that can be dropped or turned upside down without danger of breaking or setting fire to anything, have done much to lower this percentage, it was shown by the survey.

WARNS TRAVELERS OF IMPURE WATER

Warning to auto tourists of the menace of impure water was issued by Dr. James A. Beer, city health commissioner, Thursday.

Where the motorist is not sure of the purity of the water it is better that he take a few pains and a little time for purification before drinking," Dr. Beer declared.

He pointed out that from three to five drops of tincture of iodine in a quart of water will make it fit to drink. After putting the iodine in the water it should stand for about 30 minutes.

"This is a simple means of purification and every tourist should have a bottle of iodine in his equipment," he said.

Dr. Beer also pointed out that chlorine tablets can be obtained at drug stores for this purpose.—Columbus Dispatch.

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

"MRS. RANDOLPH TORRYMAN and Miss Torryman sailed on the Gigantic yesterday for a three months' tour of rural England." That was what the papers said. As a matter of fact, neither Mrs. Torryman nor her daughter, Marcia, had sailed anywhere. Mrs. Torryman had had her social secretary give out that item of "society news" so that she might get a little well-earned rest. She was not as young as she used to be and the last social season had been a little too much for her. She wanted to get somewhere where she could dine at six and read herself to sleep at nine.

In order to do this she absolutely had to do the vanishing act. For she was a very great lady in the social world; one of those who, if they speak to you three times at a dinner party, establish your social future beyond all doubt. More than all Mrs. Torryman was anxious to remove Marcia from the sphere of influence of Capt. Griswold Ives, an army officer, well enough in his way but without money. She had other plans. So she took a small house in the rather remote small town of Glendale and whisked Marcia away there.

Glendale had its own society which never thought of connecting the rather dowdily dressed widow who had taken the "Stetson place" with the great society leader they had read about in the papers.

For the first three weeks nobody called. Then Mrs. Ralph Sillinger, whose husband ran the town's "department store," was seized with a fit of curiosity and dropped in on the newcomers. She was very condescending and patronizing and decided to ask the newcomers to tea.

She did, and then the trouble began. Mrs. Torryman declined the invitation on account of "ill health," but Marcia accepted. All the women who attended Mrs. Sillinger's tea were delighted to get a new arrival "in their midst" to patronize and took full advantage of the opportunity.

All very well. But Mrs. Sillinger had a son, a young man of twenty-six or seven, heir apparent of the department store and the greatest "catch" in Glendale. And Robert, the son, dropped in on his mother's tea party and saw Marcia. Robert was an overseas man; Marcia saw his Legion button and took to him at once. They managed to get into a corner together and had a brief but earnest conversation. He asked permission to call and it was granted.

The news of the "infatuation" of Robert Sillinger for the stranger-girl went straight as an arrow to the ears of Cora Sanford; and the young man found an indignant and angry girl waiting for him when he called on her the following night. When Cora had finished what she had to say, Robert said, "Now just let me talk a minute." His talk went back to the fighting fields of France; to a front line trench and two comrades in arms waiting for the zero hour to go over the top; and confiding messages to each other to be delivered in case one of them "went west" and the other survived.

When he had finished Cora said, "Oh Bobbie—how foolish I was to doubt you. Can I help?"

"Perhaps," replied Robert, "but for a while you and I had better pretend to be rather on the outs."

Robert went to call on Marcia—and he kept on calling. Mrs. Torryman was indifferent at first; then puzzled, and then indignant. That her daughter should seriously consider marrying Robert Sillinger was unthinkable. What did it mean?

At last Mrs. Torryman said tearfully, "I almost wish I had let you marry Griswold Ives."

"Well, you wouldn't," said Marcia, "and now you see!"

Mrs. Torryman was really crying now.

"Oh, please don't, mother," said Marcia soothingly. "I'll tell you what I'll do. We'll compromise. I will dismiss Robert Sillinger this very night if you will cease to oppose my marriage with Captain Ives."

"I suppose I must submit—you ungrateful child!" returned Mrs. Torryman.

You see Griswold Ives and Robert Sillinger had been "buddies" over in France, and after the war Ives had gone into the regular service and become a captain. Robert had been told all about Marcia—been told in dug-outs and trenches; had seen her picture, which Griswold always carried with him. And Griswold had written to Marcia all about his "buddy." Robert. So, when they met at Mrs. Sillinger's tea, and Marcia told Robert how matters stood, they just naturally hatched up their little conspiracy.

Mrs. Torryman returned with her daughter to town hurriedly; and Robert and Cora were married soon after. Marcia disposed of, Mrs. Torryman cheerfully resigned the sceptre of society to younger battalions; and, Captain Ives' uncle dying and leaving him a fortune, not only became reconciled to her daughter's marriage but became persuaded that she had brought it about herself.

The colors that an individual likes and dislikes are usually determined by chance associations in his early childhood.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A merry crowd of friends gathered at the home of Gabe Elliott in Washington township last Saturday evening and gave the newly weds, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Green the surprise of their life. Following the wedding ceremony at which both Rev. Green and Rev. Elliott officiated, the young people were given a rousing reception and an elegant supper was given in their honor, 108 guests being present.

One of the most delightful parties of the season was a tea given by Mrs. James Swearingen and Miss Sara Swearingen at their home Saturday, June 18. The rooms were beautifully decorated with baskets of roses, snapdragon and lilies, while the table was adorned with candles and tea roses. In the receiving line with Mrs. Swearingen and Miss Swearingen was Mrs. Henry B. Swearingen, a bride of last fall. Among the guests from out to town were; Mrs. Albert Schoedinger, Mrs. Allan Fleming of Columbus; Misses Kate and Lou Platter, of Chillicothe; Mrs. John Corbett, of Detroit, Michigan; Mrs. Simon David, of Jackson; and Mrs. Henry B. Swearingen, of Lima.

Cemetery Centuries Old Found, History Unknown

Chester, Pa.—Curiosity-seekers have discovered an abandoned burying ground near here, said to be the oldest in the section, as dates of 1698, 1704 and 1735 are decipherable on the few remaining stones, which also show the family names of Ford and Smith.

The two-century-old cemetery is located in two states, Pennsylvania and Delaware, as the Mason and Dixon line runs directly through the property, located in the most southern part of Lawncroft cemetery, on the Wilmington pike. A cluster of trees stand guard at the rapidly vanishing plot, which is on a hill, overlooking the valley between the two states. Inquiry fails to find anyone to relate its history.

Origin of Shoemaking Traced Back to Egypt

New York.—It may boot little to you that the origin of shoes has been traced to Egypt, through the foot-wear taken from mummies in public museums, but in the days when "wom-an bangled her arms, bingled her hair and bungled her face," as Homer or Herodotus put it, she always was careful to "tittivate her toes," asserts Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly.

The Israelites wore sandals. The early Chaldeans wore neither sandals nor shoes, but shoes were not unknown to the Assyrians even in the earliest period, for they were indicated on the feet of foreign tribute bearers as early as the Black Obelisk king, Shalmaneser.

New York Governor Who Is a Potential Candidate For the Presidency Pleads With His Friends To Lay Off, Boom Is Being Advanced Too Soon—Tiger's Chances Hurt By Inserting the Religious Issue—Real Question Covered Up By Smoke Screen.

Governor Alfred E. Smith has become convinced that his boom for the presidency is being overworked by his admirers, and he has requested them to cause no further publicity of any sort during the remainder of this year.

Governor Smith has found that anti-Catholics are sending out printed circulars carrying what he terms as unwarranted inferences concerning his public record. The burden of the charges is that the governor, when a member of the constitutional convention in 1915, sponsored a resolution designed to project a religious issue concerning the appropriation of state money for denominational schools.

That and other charges indicating prejudices against Roman Catholicism have brought the governor to the conclusion that during the next ten months the religious issue related to his candidacy will be stressed more largely in the southern states where the bulk of the Democratic electoral vote usually is given to the Democratic candidate than either the fact that he is a wet or that he is the most conspicuous leader of Tammany Hall.

The governor has assured his friends that in due time he will meet any charge his opponents, in either political camp, may bring against him, but it is too far in advance of the presidential campaign to discuss such matters at this time.

The printed record of the Constitutional convention proceedings show that, June 10, 1915, A. E. Smith, a member of the body, introduced a resolution empowering the legislature to make an appropriation in aid of denominational schools.

James L. Nixon, delegate from Buffalo, editor at the time of the Buffalo Commercial, introduced a resolution to repeal the article in the state constitution that exempted the realty of religious organizations from taxation. In a prepared speech he said religious bodies in Buffalo owned a vast amount of property exempt from taxation. The committee to which was referred his resolution reported it out of committee with only one dissenting vote. On the floor of the convention, after warm debate, it was beaten by a large adverse vote.

The first appearance of Mr. Nixon's resolution, before it went to the committee, prompted Mr. Smith to introduce his resolution. It provoked so much surprise that George W. Wickersham, former attorney-general of the United States, asked Mr. Smith the why and wherefore.

The present governor told him that it was introduced merely as a club to kill off the Nixon proposal, if Mr. Nixon ever asked for the discharge of the committee holding his resolution. Nixon did ask for such discharge, whereupon Mr. Smith served notice on his fellow delegates that he also

That threat caused the overwhelming defeat of the Nixon resolution, whereupon the governor—then plain Al Smith—said that his object had been attained, and that his own proposal was dead from that minute.

Governor Smith knows all about the propaganda inspired by anti-Catholics and he appears to be convinced that it is likely to be farther reaching than any other issue. The governor, his political advisers assert, thinks that the wet and dry issue is being made to camouflage the religious issue.

According to his friends, the governor is able to meet any issue involving his public record, but he is determined that so far as he himself is concerned the 1928 presidential campaign shall not start till next year.

James Dresbach, of 218 East Main street, died suddenly at his home Sunday morning just before noon. Mrs. Dresbach, who had been in attendance at the Presbyterian church, found her husband dead, lying on the floor when she returned home.

Apparently he was in good health. He was seated at the breakfast table when his wife left to attend church. A feature of the meeting in the chapter room was the singing of two solos by Mrs. Lenhart of Columbus.

Mrs. Lenhart has a splendid voice and this part of the program was a real treat. Before her marriage she was Miss Kreider, of Tarlton.

Another feature that gave added interest to the session was the fact the two worthy matrons; Mrs. Bess O'Brien, of Columbus, and Mrs. Muriel Reichelderfer of this city, are sisters.

Find 100-Foot Worms Off California Coast

Berkeley, Calif.—Species of sea worms classified as "amazing creatures," some of which are said to be 100 feet long, have been seen and studied in the Pacific ocean near San Diego by Prof. W. R. Coe, Yale university, as guest research worker at the University of California, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, at La Jolla, he reports.

These remarkable sea denizens, known by the scientific name "nemerteans," have been examined by few biologists of the world. Doctor Coe is believed to be the only living scientist knowing much about them.

To zoologists the worms are especially notable for their length, some of the more common species extending a yard, their bodies being only a fraction of an inch in width. Certain of the nemertean species are reported to be longer than any known animal, 100 or more feet. Even the whale has not been found to reach quite that length, says Doctor Coe.

SAVING

Of $200 Made For Trip To France.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—Each veteran going to the Paris, France, convention of The American Legion, September 19th to 23rd, will be saved approximately $200 over the cost of a similar trip by concessions granted by railroad companies, steamship lines and foreign governments, it is estimated by Howard P. Savage, National Commander of the Legion. This monetary saving will be aside from the special inspirational entertainment and the pleasure of traveling with comrades of the World war.

Preparation of a special official American Legion Identification Certificate costing $1, that will take the place of the ordinary passport costing $10 and the expensive foreign visas, is now complete. This Legion Identification Certificate will allow the veteran the utmost freedom of movement in eighteen countries of Europe and will make a splendid souvenir.

Fifty per cent reduction on United States and Canadian railways have been arranged, as well as many other savings.

Flowers can be preserved in their natural colors and shapes by a new method recently tested with good results.

A half-inch layer of white scouring grade sand is placed in a dish or similar receptacle, and the flowers are inserted stem downward and sprinkled over until the petals and blossoms are covered. The dish is then put in a warm dry place, and in about a week most of the blooms will be found perfectly dry.

CLAIMS BLOOD OF NOW EXTINCT RACE

Believed Only Survivor of Nah- Dah-Ko Tribe.

Anadarko, Okla.—Blood of an extinct race flows in the veins of Harry Shirley, believed to be the last of the Nah-Dah-Ko Indians, who attained a degree of civilization as long as four centuries ago.

His father, Pat Shirley, was a white trader, but his mother was a Nah-Dah-Ko. With his white wife and two children, Shirley lives on a farm near Anadarko. He is fifty-five years old. Virtual annihilation of the Nah-Dah-Kos was completed when Shirley was four years old, and his knowledge of the fate of his people is vague. The band, which was a branch of the Caddo tribe, was not great in numbers, and he believes it was annihilated in an internecine war when he was a child. He was taken to Texas by his father when hostilities broke out, and did not return until the war ended.

The town of Anadarko is named for the vanished tribe. Legend has it that the elder Shirley's Irish pronunciation of the tribal name was responsible for the corruption of the name from Nah-Dah-Ko to Anadarko. Although the present town was not founded until 1901, an Indian agency of the same name was located near here as early as 1858.

The original home of the Nah-Dah-Ko band was in Louisiana. Records of a Spanish explorer reveal that in 1542 the Indians lived in houses, farmed extensively and owned cattle. They were driven westward by the encroachment of the white man and gradually lost their identity through absorption into other tribes and losses in warfare.

New York.—Suit to secure a wedding gift of $20,000, alleged to have been promised her, has been brought by Mrs. Adela L. Condeau of Nice, France, against her cousin, Leon Schinas, multimillionaire cigarette manufacturer.

Relying on Schinas's alleged promise of a $20,000 gift, Mrs. Condeau, formerly Miss Adele L. Schratte of this city, charges she advanced her wedding date and married Rene Condeau, a bank clerk from Nice, in this city October 2, 1926.

Schinas, in his reply, said the money was not to be paid within a year after the marriage.

Farm labor in Ohio is becoming scarce, although it commands a higher wage when compared with former days and when compared with the prices of farm products in the state, according to J. I. Falconer, chief of the department of rural economics, Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Some 50 per cent of Ohio farms hire no labor, about 25 per cent hire for somewhat less than a year's time, while the other 25 per cent hire one or more men the year around. This is only about one-half the amount of hired labor on Ohio farms that there was in 1910.

The prices received for farm products advanced more rapidly than farm wages and more rapidly than city wages up to 1920. Following 1920 farm wages fell with the price of farm products. For a time since 1920 city wages showed a slight tendency to decline, then to rise, and by 1926 they had reached a level higher than that of 1920.

It is the high wages paid in city employment and the low price received for farm products, as stated by Dr. Falconer, that has attracted labor from the country to the city and made it difficult for the country to pay correspondingly high wages.

Pretoria, Transvaal.—More than 60,000 Europeans and 120,000 natives are working on the newly discovered diamond fields in the Lichtenburg area, according to Dr. H. A. Lorentz, Dutch consul general here.

The lure of lucky strikes is responsible for a great dearth of farm labor, and Lichtenburg farmers are bewailing the fact that kafirs cannot be induced to do farm work when they can earn 30 shillings a week in the diamond fields.

No less than 43 per cent of the diggers belong to the agricultural classes, and only nine per cent are diamond miners by trade.

Curious tales of fortune hunting abound. Some who believed they had the richest claims suffered disappointment, while, on the other hand, an old man who sat down when he saw he was being beaten in the race for claim pegging, dug where he sat and struck a rich patch.

In another case a digger cursed when he sprained his ankle, falling over a tuft of grass, but later discovered that he had fallen on a claim that is now panning out rich.

Lace Is Popular;

All Shades of Blue Featured; Points of Interest in Spring Fashions.

"Now is the time when fashion breaks into print," comments the style forecast of Fashionable Dress Magazine, which also calls attention to the popularity of lace, the featuring of all shades of blue, and the rising waistline, in an article herein summarized.

Printed frocks, coats, blouses, parasols and innumerable bandings appear this spring, according to this article. Many dresses in solid colors adopt prints for trimming in the vestee, ties, sash, or jabot. Prints combined with plain cloth are also popular in the compose costumes in the role of the sleeveless underdress, the blouse or the underbodice of a bolero.

"With prints restricted more or less to daytime wear, laces have chances galore to shine in the evening," announces the magazine, in commenting on the use of cre lace for dresses notably in black, but also in colors. Lace for trimming, in addition to its popularity with chiffon in dance and dinner dresses, becomes more and more important as a decoration for day wear. Cream lace is very successful on black faille or satin. Besides the cream lace forming yokes, sleeve puffs, cuff and the ends on black and navy blue dresses, laces are used considerably on rose and green dresses, in these lighter shades frequently being dyed to match.

Waistlines are rising, and are usually defined by wide or narrow belts, tie sashes, or crush girdles. "The double waistline," remarks the writer, "effects an artful compromise with two belts, one placed at normal and the other several inches lower down." This treatment is even used on soft evening dresses.

The berth collar is again in favor with the round neck and modified bateau outline. A chiffon dinner and dance frock with this collar finishing at the shoulder in drapery like a jabot, caught with a two-tone chiffon flower, and a tiered skirt terminating in drapery to match the berth collar, is also described.

Fabric flowers for the shoulder frequently appear, often combining both materials of the ensemble in the boutonniere.

"Blue in all shades is probably the leading spring color," concludes the article, "with greens not far behind, and rose of the bois de rose family very pronounced. Orange is a new shade for evening, in dress and wrap, and turquoise is an evening blue that already shows signs of assuming sports importance."

Bows on Spring Frock in Keeping With Mode

Culotte Skirt Is Name of New Trouser Costume

Almost every dressmaker of importance in Paris shows at least one trouser-skirt dress in summer collections.

Culotte skirts is the name the French prefer for the latest attempt at trousers for women. The trouser skirt is disguised by an inverted box plait in the front which only discloses the true nature of the skirt when its wearer is in brisk motion.

STOP AUTO STEALING BIG MILK FLOOD IS COMING

A thirty-inch 4,000,000 candle power searchlight has cut the theft rate of motor cars in half, according to officials of the Worcester (Mass.) police department, where the powerful light is used. Instructed to be on the lookout for flashes from the light from its position on a building, the police, on seeing it, go at once to the nearest patrol box for details of the theft. The light is then turned on the part of the city where the theft was committed.

Washington.—Some decided contrasts between the old and the new are being furnished as the capital gets down to the actual work of beautifying the downtown section, parts of which for years have been a constant irritant to those artistically inclined.

In the block adjoining the massive Post Office department building, whose foundations enclose labyrinth of cellars below the ground, an entire city block occupied by stores and other business houses was razed, and not a single basement was disclosed.

When the brickwork and other walls were removed, a job requiring a very short time, the ground beneath was found to be so smooth that it was immediately pre-empted by motorists as a place where automobiles might be left indefinitely without the dread of finding them ticketed for parking too long.

FOUND IN WESTERN CANADARare Specimen Is Discovered by Archaeologists' Party in British Columbia.

Hazelton, B. C.—While there may not have been beauty parlors in the
prehistoric days, the Indian braves
and belles who inhabited what is now
central British Columbia had their own methods and appliances for enhancing their charm.

The "rouge and cosmetics" used
were obtained from natural coloring
recently shows that hand mirrors also
existed in their days. The discovery was made by a dominion archaeolo-gists' party in the prehistoric part of the ancient Gitkane village site, immediately below Hazelton, of one of the
extremely rare stone mirrors known
to have been used by the totem pole
Indians of the Skeena valley area.

stone, one end of which is narrowed
its flat surface highly polished. One
of the older Hazelton Indians demonstrated to the archaeologists how this was used. The mirror surface was wet and when this is done the polished surface actually reflects the human face so clearly that individual hairs and the color of the eyes are discernible.

The specimen secured is being sent
preservation among the prehistoric Indian relics.

Lure Birds to Death

New York.—The tale of the fate of
a large flock of birds in the dense fog
outside New York was told by officers
of the liner Ebro when it arrived
from the west coast of South America.
The liner dropped anchor off Ambrose Lightship.

"It was a little after midnight," said Captain Ellis Roberts. "I was sitting
in my quarters when suddenly the air
was filled with the fluttering of wings
and voices of birds.

"I got up and looked out. There,
coming out of the gray curtain of fog
thousands upon thousands of birds
appeared within the radius of our
ship's lights. There were wrens, robins, sparrows, starlings and many
other types, but not a single seagull.
"These birds dashed themselves
lighted portholes, hundreds of them
stunned or dead.

"The birds came out of the south
and were probably on their annual
migration north when they lost their bearings in the fog."

Berlin, Germany.—Jail sentences
are being urged by the Retail Dry Goods association for shopkeepers
who indulge in fraudulent or misleading advertising to attract trade.

The action is directed especially
against those stores which are perpetually "going out of business" or
"slightly damaged by fire."

Existing federal statutes covering
false advertising have never been enforced, the association asserts, and the
hot sales methods of numerous small
shops are beginning to reflect discredit
on the whole dry goods trade. Newspapers are urged to refuse advertising from unreliable stores.

of Hungary's Godmother

Szokesfeharvar, Hungary.—Six hundred wreaths were placed on her
grave and a tree bearing 570 burning
candles was planted nearby when Maria Molnar, eighty-nine, of this village was buried.

Each candle represented a child to
whom Maria had stood godmother.
Two hundred and ninety she had held in her arms while the priests christened them and 280 she had sponsored on their confirmation day.

She was known locally as "Hungary's godmother." At her funeral all of her godchildren who are still living took part, each bringing a wreath and a candle. The 30 remain-

Norway, Mich.—Although "Jim"
Bailey is seventy-seven years old, he
claims he can "step out" and walk
to prove his mettle he often walks 12

refuses to ride in automobiles, he says,
when he is out for a little limbering-
rest on the way.

"Old Jim" is a retired miner, is a bachelor. He says he doesn't know whether that accounts for his being able to hike like he does and when
asked why he never married, "Jim"
replied: "Well, I never stood still
long enough for Cupid's arrow to hit

SHAFT IN 2 YEARSSponsors in Washington Seek
More Funds in Congress.

Washington.—Obstacles which for
fifteen years have blocked the erection in Washington of a statue commemorating the 1,500 victims of the Titanic disaster are slowly being cleared away. Members of the Woman's Titanic Memorial association hope that their objective will be reached in another two years.

Organized shortly after the disaster
in 1912, the association promptly
raised more than $40,000 for the memorial, but it was not until 1917 that
a bill authorizing use of public
grounds for the purpose got through
the legislative jam in congress. Then
the site which had been selected was denied.

A new site was chosen, on the Potomac near the ground dedicated to
Payne Whitney of New York went
ahead with completion of the statue
from a design approved by the Fine Arts commission several years earlier.

The new site was under water, but
plans had been made for construction
of a sea wall as part of the program
for linking Potomac and Rock parks.

Appropriations for the wall were
hard to get, however, and work on it
had to be suspended in 1922, after
only part of the riprap foundation had been put in. The last congress granted $25,000 for resumption of the work, but that was enough to provide for
little more than repairs on the old
foundation. Engineers estimated that another $175,000 would be needed.

Mrs. William Howard Taft is interested in the plan, which is under the
guidance of Mrs. John Hays Hammond, first secretary of the association, and Mrs. Robert S. Chew.

These women are confident that the necessary appropriation will be granted by the next congress and that soon afterward they will be able to complete their task.

Colds in Head Prove
Impervious to Vaccine

Manchester, England.—A cold in the head is still a cold in the head at the Manchester university, where for seven months experiments have been going on to determine the value of vaccination. Two hundred and eighty-
six persons took part in the test.

The conclusion that vaccination
against colds has no preventive value
was suggested by the results of an
experiment carried on by Dr. A. F. C.
Davey, Dr. F. R. Ferguson and Dr.
W. W. C. Topley.

Students and members of the university staff offered their services for
the experiment. Of these 138 were inoculated with a stock vaccine containing eight different kinds of microbes, and 148 were not inoculated.

Results showed that the 138 inocu-
lated persons had 203 colds, the 148 noninoculated subjects had 163 colds
during the period of the test and that
the average duration of the colds
among the inoculated was 13 days
and among the others ten and one-
half days.

The investigators, however, concluded that the evidence does not justify with certainty any conclusion that vaccine caused any harm.

"The Flesh Pots

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

"I DO NOT require impossibilities," Acton said loftily. "Only the girl I marry must be wholly unsophisticated."

Surely she'll be among the loneliest
works of God," Elizabeth countered.
"Only think how your vast experience
will bore her."

"H-m! Does it ever bore you?"
Acton demanded, flushing.

She laughed softly, nodding. "More
times than I care to remember."

"I shall certainly spare you such
annoyance in future," Acton all but
snorted, looking down at her.

That made her giggle outright before answering: "Stop fibbing, Johnny
—you do it so lamely. You know you'll never cease from coming Sunday nights—unless you find somebody
that makes better waffles and fried
peach pies than I do."

"You will see!" from Acton idly.

When her caller had almost slammed
the door behind him, she lay full length upon the fine old sofa, hands outspread above her face, looking hard at her rosy taper fingers, the
while she said to her image in the
mantel mirror: "Praise be if the medicine works. You," tapping two fingers, "have really earned the Acton
diamond. With malice aforethought
—you knew all the time the way to
read your title clear to all the Acton
emoluments was by the gate of their owner's palate. I wonder how you endured the drudgery two whole years—
but not quite as much as I wonder what set you to speaking truth!"

"No mystery at all," a girl's voice
said through an opening inner door.
"A good-bad reason—it wears trousers, and answers to the name of Curly Dan—and comes without waiting to be called—"

"And owns the loveliest, the most
virgin ignorance—listens as if Solomon himself were speaking when you open your mouth—or even me—at a pinch." Elizabeth broke in, sitting up,
her eyes dancing, wild roses in her cheeks. "Best of all—he's not even a genteel pauper—it warms your heart to watch him eat—you know he
needs Sunday feed to carry him
through a week at the parsonage."

"Wonder why he stays there?" May,
the new-comer, said reflectively.

"Because of those poor children—
they half starve with him helping out
he left—"

"Who's the phenomenon?" from a slim tall fellow, standing upright in
the outer door.

May looked reproach, saying:
"Small boys should know better than
to ask foolish questions—especially if
they answer themselves."

"Lovely singing birds, who's been
otherwise Daniel Maury, Esq., demanded, holding fast a hand of each girl. "Sit down—and give me the advice I need."

"Then—fire away!" Elizabeth ordered, shaking her fist at him.

"It's—it's only—I've come into
money—nothing to speak of really—
still—I'm not any more a pauper—
with an appetite—it was only in the appetite way I came near your friend Acton—"

"Don't name him! The pig!" Elizabeth ejaculated viciously.

"A nice fat pig," Dan teased. "Met
him on my way here—he was swearing hard enough to take his appetite—"

"As if anything could," May murmured.

Curly Dan ran on: "He was crying
almost as hard as he was cussin'—
about how cruelly he'd been deceived
know who's the guilty person—"

"Oh! We went half and half," his listeners said tranquilly.

"Sure?" he asked. "Well! That puts me in a fix sure enough. You see I meant to reward the guilty person with some part of my new wealth
—and ask the other to take me—just
as I stand, plus $5,000."

"Quite a sum! One might easily have less," Elizabeth said primly.

Dan.

"Oh! I might!" she nodded.

May gave her a gentle smack on the
your duplicity. Miss Quincy! You know it took Dan plus the grace of God to save you from becoming Mrs.
John Thomas Acton."

"You, of course, want to make sure of the Capital Prize!" Elizabeth flung
back aggressively.

Thereat Dan laughed uproariously,
crying: "Don't fight! Capital aplenty for all the family. Counting us three equal partners, we're rolling in wealth
—rich enough to endow those poor
alley brats, feed, clothe and educate
them—and leave us enough in hand to go sailing around the world long enough and strong enough to tie the
equator in bow-knots."

"Let's go! When do we begin cash-

Curly Dan looked thoughtful. "Not
for another month," he said. "A fine
poor man's appetite is too precious to
be sacrificed suddenly. Only think,
though—it came near spoiling everything. Nights when I was so hungry
I lay awake planning to murder Acton.
Now I'm convinced that as a root of
evil the love of money don't compare
with the lack of it."

"All's well that ends well," from
May, oracularly.

"Make it unanimous," cried Dan,
putting his arms about Elizabeth.

Diet for Mentally Ill

Because mental illness is a disorder
of the entire individual and not merely of the mind, the diet should be pre-

Dr. L. D. Hubbard in Hygeia Magazine. Mental defectives, even idiots,
do not appear to suffer greatly from
dietary errors.

Marion Davies Hollandaise — a piquant foreign creation that is alluringly new—that's the new Marion Davies in "The Red Mill," new Cosmopolitan spectacle now playing at the Met theater. The much-heralded adaptation of the famous stage hit scored instant popularity with its quaint settings, a spectacular winter fete, dramatic intensity intermingled with lightsome comedy—and Marion Davies' faultless acting of a role unlike any in her entire career.

One associates Marion Davies with gowns—with costumes—with plays like "Beverly of Graustark" or "Light of Old Broadway." But here is a new one—Marion Davies in pig-tails and wooden shoes.

Her talents as a comedian have the best opportunities they have had to date, and she makes the most of them, in the skating scenes where she drops to disaster and a frozen face the struggle with the patent American ironing board that invades the sacred precincts of her Holland kitchen, and other hilarious details.

These add uproarious entertainment to a story that is gripping in its heart interest—the story of a little Dutch kitchen slave who is catapulted into society and a strange love affair—who adventures with ghosts in a haunted mill and upsets a Holland town—all for the love of an Irish tourist with a comedy valet and a green necktie.

William Goodrich directed the new story from a scenario by Frances Marion, based on the noted comic opera by Victor Herbert and Henry Blossom. Owen Moore plays the Irish hero in a debonnaire style that is appealing in its charm; George Siegman, famous screen villain, is as bad as ever in the role of the sinister "Uncle Willem" Louise Fazenda and Karl Dane make an amusing comedy team in the new production, and Fred Gambold, William Orlamond, Russell Powell and other well known favorites are included in the cast.

Seven hundred people are seen in the glittering winter festival scene and other elaborate details in the quaint Dutch village in which the action of the new play takes place.

New Discovery Will Save Guinea Pigs

Denver, Colo.—Lives of millions of guinea pigs, hitherto known as the "test tubes" of tuberculosis, probably will be saved in the future, thanks to a discovery made in the laboratory of the Denver Jewish hospital.

For years guinea pigs were the only known medium for producing tuberculosis bacilli for experimental inoculations. Not only were thousands of the animals sacrificed to science, but thousands of dollars were spent in raising them in hospitals throughout the country.

After months of experimentation, Dr. H. J. Carper, director of the Denver institution, was able to produce the tuberculosis germs through the use of a specially treated potato medium.

One hundred tests, Doctor Carper said, now may be made with the potato germs at the cost of one where germs from guinea pigs were used.

He added that the germs from the potato culture are in daily use in the Denver hospital and that he expected their use to become universal within the next few months.

Hen's Eggs Sell at Rate of $300 a Dozen

Vancouver, B. C.—Three eggs laid by "Maizie," world's champion hen owned by the University of British Columbia, have been sold to a Texas poultry breeder for $25 apiece or at a rate of $300 a dozen, according to an announcement by Prof. Everton A. Lloyd. The "miracle" hen recently broke all previous records by producing 351 eggs in a 365-day test.

"This is the highest price ever paid for a hen's eggs," said Professor Lloyd. "If the entire set of 351 eggs had been sold at $25 apiece, the pullet's production for the year would have been worth $8,775."

"Maizie's" record in the egg laying contest was four eggs ahead of the world's previous high mark held by an Australian bird which laid 347 eggs in a year's official test. The former record held in North America was established by a pullet at the Puyallup (Wash.) experiment station, which laid 335 eggs in 365 days.

Scientific poultry breeding, it is pointed out, is improving the standard of Canadian flocks. Some of the finest birds on the continent are said to be owned in the Dominion. Poultry is becoming an important farm sideline in western Canada. New settlers entering the mixed farming areas find hens profitable. Elimination of nonlayer and scrub stock from the barnyards is helping to develop the industry.

Propaganda Had Its Birth in Ancient China

Washington.—Although it took a World war to develop it into an element of everyday life, propaganda, like powder and printing, was produced in China long before Europe became aware of its possibilities.

Emperor Chieng Lung, who ruled over China in the Eighteenth century, wanted his people to believe that his domain embraced the world. So he had printed a book in which 42 European peoples and 231 tribes were represented as paying tribute to him, this being shown not only through the text but with engravings.

His book is included in a Chinese collection on exhibition at the Congressional Library, which also embraces a few volumes printed in the Twelfth century, 300 years before the art of printing was developed in Europe.

Bestow Garlands on Virtuous Poor Girls

Paris.—The best girls of France are being crowned with wreaths of rosebuds and awarded money prizes.

Usually this presentation is the big event of a Sunday ceremony organized for the distribution of various local prizes. Some are for long service, others for special achievement of many kinds.

The prize for virtue dates back to the year 525. St. Medard, bishop of Noyon, is by tradition given credit for initiating a public fund out of his own property to supply the prize money.

The custom spread through the centuries, and it is observed still, mostly in northern France.

Generally the prize is awarded to a poor girl who supports a family.

Fathers Have Best Records as Voters

Chicago.—Father holds the best record as a voter. Next in regularity at the polls come sons and daughters, with mother trailing at the rear.

The National League of Women Voters found that out after making a study of citizens' voting habits in five states. The findings were made public recently by the Illinois league.

It was determined that women use the vote much less than men. Other findings were:

Middle-aged persons have the largest voting percentage; young people the lowest. The better the education the higher the voting percentage of the group. A very small per cent of the total eligible voters never use their vote.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR DEAD IN THE FRATERNITY

Knights of Pythias Decorate Graves of Those Who Have Gone Before With Beautiful Blossoms of Spring—Judge C. C. Williams Was Orator of the Day And the Boys' Band, of Springfield, Furnished the Music.

Philos Lodge, 64, Knights of Pythias, held memorial services for their dead Sunday afternoon at Forest cemetery.

The beautiful custom of placing flowers and a triangle of myrtle on the lasting resting place of members of the order is observed annually and Sunday was the 64th year of the Pythian period.

The members of the order and their auxiliary, the Pythian Sisters, gathered at their lodge room promptly at the appointed time and at two o'clock, the parade, headed by the Boys' band of the Pythian Children's Home at Springfield, formed in line and marched to the cemetery where Judge Curtis C. Williams of Columbus, grand chancellor, made the address of the day.

Ritualistic work preceded the address of the grand chancellor. The members formed a triangle and stood at attention bareheaded thru the exercises. There were 110 members in line and they were followed in autos filled by the Pythian Sisters, who alighted when they reached the cemetery. Miss Laura Mantle was the color bearer.

Judge Williams said, in part: "In this sylvan home of the dead, we gather to pay our tribute of love and affection. It is fitting that we recall their virtues and pay our respect to them. We meet in fond recollection of those who have passed beyond, we remember them as we saw them in the lodge room, we remember them as fellow citizens.

Pythias, after whom this order is named, may have never lived or died, or not have lived at all, but his name will live on, and his principles will live forever in the memory of this organization. Friendship, Charity and Benevolence are the cardinal points of this order. There are other fraternal organizations which are good, but none have higher principles than Pythians.

On a day like this, we should consider our duties as citizens, the obedience of law, is the highest ideal of citizenship. In this day of uncertainty and unrest good citizenship exemplifies itself in patriotism. This patriotism is best fostered by Friendship, Charity and Benevolence thru this order.

The speaker closed with this poem: "Three golden arrows in the quiver, filled else with deeds of strife, Three sunny islands in the river, the rapid stream of life, Three stars in Heaven's gem decked attire that never fade or dim Three harp notes in the spirit lyre that angels love to hymn.

Three blossoms from the land of flowers to cheer the fainting soul Three rays of beauty from the bowers beyond life's utmost goal. Three strains of rapturous music swelling around the burial sod Three pillars in the Holy dwelling in the temple of Our God."

Notes.

The Boys' band from the Pythian Children's Home, which was under the leadership of W. G. F. Shulze, was composed of twenty-two members.

Members of the order were present from Washington C. H., New Holland, Stoutsville, Ashville, Williamsport, Chillicothe and Harrisburg.

L. E. Gayman, superintendent of the Pythian Children's Home made an address at the Castle hall on the return to the city. He said when he took charge, he gave the home the motto; "Character, Education and Protection" and that in his government every one connected with the home must live up to this motto.

There are 235 boys and girls in the home. Grand Chancellor Williams paid a loving tribute to the past Grand Chancellor J. D. Clark, who had lived a life of service and sacrifice. He was a member of the Ohio Industrial commission.

AT LEAST HOPED TO SAVE HIS CARRIAGE

Charlie Chaplin in an interview in New York told some stories about mercenary, grasping women.

"And then there was Rachel:—so one of his stories ran—"Rachel, you know, the great French actress. As far as grasping goes, Rachel would be hard to beat even today. "Rachel dined one night with the rich Count Duchatel. There was a magnificent silver epergne in the middle of the table and she persuaded the count to present it to her. Afterward, to save cab fare and to be sure that the count wouldn't change his mind about the epergne, she got him to send her home with it in his own carriage.

"The priceless epergne," she said, 'will be safer this way than in a public cab.'

"Yes, yes, quite so," said the count, with a rather nasty laugh, as he escorted her across the sidewalk—for he knew he'd been done. "But you'll be sure to send me back my carriage, won't you?"

A Man's Man

Abraham Lincoln has always been our favorite American statesman, but since learning from no less a historical authority than our Mr. McKee himself that James Madison did more than any of our great Americans to introduce and popularize long trousers to take the place of knee breeches, we feel, what with our legs and all, that perhaps we have underestimated this great man's service to his country.—Ohio State Journal.

In the parish of Pouilly-sous-Charleroi, France—a place of about 2,000 inhabitants—was recently celebrated an unusual event during which the village church was filled by a still more unusual congregation.

The event was the celebration of the one hundredth birthday of one of the women parishioners. She was escorted to the foot of the altar by a group of thirty-four of her friends, not one of whom was under eighty years of age.

Bees Saved a Missionary

While Cantonese soldiers were looting the home of Doctor Macklin, American missionary, they found behind the house a number of mysterious white boxes which they believed contained valuables. They broke them open with butts of their rifles. The boxes were beehives, and their signal was "repel invaders." There was a rapid and disorderly retreat, the Cantonese army's first real defeat.—Capper's Weekly.

PROPER CHOICE

Of Shoes Makes the Feet Look Smaller.

A decided improvement in the appearance of one's feet can be made by the proper choice of shoes, points out Eileen Bourne in an article in this week's Liberty. "Every woman's problem," she explains, "is to reconcile health and comfort with style and good looks. For fashionable appearance the ideal feet are small and narrow, with slim, high instep and short toes. A few of us possess them, but the rest of us must pick and choose our shoes.

"The woman with fat instep and thick ankle," Miss Bourne continues, "looks best in oxfords and strapless pumps. She of the fat instep should wear as high a heel as comfort permits. Feet distorted by bunions need shoes cut high. For this disfigurement and for any foot broad at the ball, a colonial style is the most flattering. Short vamps—but never too short—are best for the long, thin foot. Strapped pumps also reduce the size of a foot. Shoes deeply cut out, light-colored, or fancy street shoes are suitable only for small, well shaped feet. Find what style suits your foot and stick to it."

WOMEN SMOKERS

On one of the principal railroads women who invade the masculine precincts of the smoking car are politely but firmly requested by the trainmen to leave.

Four tables of players were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. Robert Denman last evening when she complimented Miss Ruth Young, fiancée of Mr. Walter Denman with an evening bridge party. Her home was decorated in the season's flowers with pink roses and lilies predominating. At the conclusion of the game Miss Young was presented with a beautiful gift and Mrs. Wilmer Boston, Mrs. W. H. Nelson and Mrs. Earl Price received prizes. Mrs. Wilmer Boston of Sunbury, Ohio, was an out-of-town guest.

When Mrs. R. F. Lilly and Mrs. Frank Kline Jr. entertained with a dinner-bridge at their home in Watt street last evening honoring Miss Evelyn Teegardin whose marriage to Mr. Dwight Steele will be solemnized next Wednesday, their home was artistically decorated in the most beautiful flowers of the season. Roses and lilies decked the rooms and a trellis of the same beautiful flowers enhanced the mantles in the living rooms. Centering the twelve small tables where the dinner was served were pompons of pastel shades tied with butterfly bows of the same hue and on which miniature butterflies were perched. The nut cups were of the same shade as the centerpiece and were decorated with the tiny butterflies. The place cards and tallies also carried out the color scheme. At the conclusion of the game Mrs. I. F. Boggs and Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker were awarded prizes and Miss Teegardin was given a lovely guest prize. Mrs. Milton Cayce, of Wellington, Ohio, and Miss Maxine Rowe, of Pueblo, Colo., were out-of-town guests.

The Business and Professional Women's Club will be entertained with a six o'clock dinner at the home of Miss Mary Connor in Pinckney street Tuesday evening, June 21st.

Fooled Old Gentleman

"I ran all the way home from grandpa's because he said if he could catch me he was going to make me weed the garden."—The Outlook.

More than 90 per cent of the $150,000,000 yearly fire loss on farms throughout the United States is preventable, according to a recent survey. Fully 50 per cent is the result of absolute carelessness while 40 per cent is due to semi-carelessness in the use of improper lamps and stoves or to the absence of any fire prevention equipment.

Safety first campaigns conducted by the National Safety Council and installation of properly placed lightning rods and non-explosive gasoline lamps, lanterns and stoves that can be dropped or turned upside down without danger of breaking or setting fire to anything, have done much to lower this percentage, it was shown by the survey.

WARNS TRAVELERS OF IMPURE WATER

Warning to auto tourists of the menace of impure water was issued by Dr. James A. Beer, city health commissioner, Thursday.

Where the motorist is not sure of the purity of the water it is better that he take a few pains and a little time for purification before drinking," Dr. Beer declared.

He pointed out that from three to five drops of tincture of iodine in a quart of water will make it fit to drink. After putting the iodine in the water it should stand for about 30 minutes.

"This is a simple means of purification and every tourist should have a bottle of iodine in his equipment," he said.

Dr. Beer also pointed out that chlorine tablets can be obtained at drug stores for this purpose.—Columbus Dispatch.

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

"MRS. RANDOLPH TORRYMAN and Miss Torryman sailed on the Gigantic yesterday for a three months' tour of rural England." That was what the papers said. As a matter of fact, neither Mrs. Torryman nor her daughter, Marcia, had sailed anywhere. Mrs. Torryman had had her social secretary give out that item of "society news" so that she might get a little well-earned rest. She was not as young as she used to be and the last social season had been a little too much for her. She wanted to get somewhere where she could dine at six and read herself to sleep at nine.

In order to do this she absolutely had to do the vanishing act. For she was a very great lady in the social world; one of those who, if they speak to you three times at a dinner party, establish your social future beyond all doubt. More than all Mrs. Torryman was anxious to remove Marcia from the sphere of influence of Capt. Griswold Ives, an army officer, well enough in his way but without money. She had other plans. So she took a small house in the rather remote small town of Glendale and whisked Marcia away there.

For the first three weeks nobody called. Then Mrs. Ralph Sillinger, whose husband ran the town's "department store," was seized with a fit of curiosity and dropped in on the newcomers. She was very condescending and patronizing and decided to ask the newcomers to tea.

She did, and then the trouble began. Mrs. Torryman declined the invitation on account of "ill health," but Marcia accepted. All the women who attended Mrs. Sillinger's tea were delighted to get a new arrival "in their midst" to patronize and took full advantage of the opportunity.

All very well. But Mrs. Sillinger had a son, a young man of twenty-six or seven, heir apparent of the department store and the greatest "catch" in Glendale. And Robert, the son, dropped in on his mother's tea party and saw Marcia. Robert was an overseas man; Marcia saw his Legion button and took to him at once. They managed to get into a corner together and had a brief but earnest conversation. He asked permission to call and it was granted.

The news of the "infatuation" of Robert Sillinger for the stranger-girl went straight as an arrow to the ears of Cora Sanford; and the young man found an indignant and angry girl waiting for him when he called on her the following night. When Cora had finished what she had to say, Robert said, "Now just let me talk a minute." His talk went back to the fighting fields of France; to a front line trench and two comrades in arms waiting for the zero hour to go over the top; and confiding messages to each other to be delivered in case one of them "went west" and the other survived.

When he had finished Cora said, "Oh Bobbie—how foolish I was to doubt you. Can I help?"

"Perhaps," replied Robert, "but for a while you and I had better pretend to be rather on the outs."

Robert went to call on Marcia—and he kept on calling. Mrs. Torryman was indifferent at first; then puzzled, and then indignant. That her daughter should seriously consider marrying Robert Sillinger was unthinkable. What did it mean?

At last Mrs. Torryman said tearfully, "I almost wish I had let you marry Griswold Ives."

Mrs. Torryman was really crying now.

"Oh, please don't, mother," said Marcia soothingly. "I'll tell you what I'll do. We'll compromise. I will dismiss Robert Sillinger this very night if you will cease to oppose my marriage with Captain Ives."

"I suppose I must submit—you ungrateful child!" returned Mrs. Torryman.

You see Griswold Ives and Robert Sillinger had been "buddies" over in France, and after the war Ives had gone into the regular service and become a captain. Robert had been told all about Marcia—been told in dug-outs and trenches; had seen her picture, which Griswold always carried with him. And Griswold had written to Marcia all about his "buddy," Robert. So, when they met at Mrs. Sillinger's tea, and Marcia told Robert how matters stood, they just naturally hatched up their little conspiracy.

Mrs. Torryman returned with her daughter to town hurriedly; and Robert and Cora were married soon after. Marcia disposed of, Mrs. Torryman cheerfully resigned the sceptre of society to younger hatdis; and, Captain Ives' uncle dying and leaving him a fortune, not only became reconciled to her daughter's marriage but became persuaded that she had brought it about herself.

The colors that an individual likes and dislikes are usually determined by chance associations in his early childhood.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A merry crowd of friends gathered at the home of Gabe Elliott in Washington township last Saturday evening and gave the newly weds, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Green the surprise of their life. Following the wedding ceremony at which both Rev. Green and Rev. Elliott officiated, the young people were given a rousing reception and an elegant supper was given in their honor, 108 guests being present.

One of the most delightful parties of the season was a tea given by Mrs. James Swearingen and Miss Sara Swearingen at their home Saturday, June 18. The rooms were beautifully decorated with baskets of roses, snapdragon and lilies, while the table was adorned with candles and tea roses. In the receiving line with Mrs. Swearingen and Miss Swearingen was Mrs. Henry B. Swearingen, a bride of last fall. Among the guests from out to town were; Mrs. Albert Schoedinger, Mrs. Allan Fleming of Columbus; Misses Kate and Lou Platter, of Chillicothe; Mrs. John Corbett, of Detroit, Michigan; Mrs. Simon David, of Jackson, and Mrs. Henry B. Swearingen, of Lima.

Chester, Pa.—Curiosity-seekers have discovered an abandoned burying ground near here, said to be the oldest in the section, as dates of 1693, 1704 and 1735 are decipherable on the few remaining stones, which also show the family names of Ford and Smith.

The two-century-old cemetery is located in two states, Pennsylvania and Delaware, as the Mason and Dixon line runs directly through the property, located in the most southern part of Lawncroft cemetery, on the Wilmington pike. A cluster of trees stand guard at the rapidly vanishing plot, which is on a hill, overlooking the valley between the two states. Inquiry fails to find anyone to relate its history.

Ask Father—He Knows

"You shut up for a while and let me talk to them," said Mrs. Waffles, whose husband—who thought he knew something about bringing up children—had been scolding the kids in thunderous tones. "The only thing you know how to raise is your voice."—Farm and Fireside.

New York.—It may boot little to you that the origin of shoes has been traced to Egypt, through the foot wear taken from mummies in public museums, but in the days when "wom" an bangled her arms, bingled her hair and bungled her face," as Homer or Herodotus put it, she always was careful to "tittivate her toes," asserts Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly.

The Israelites wore sandals. The early Chaldeans wore neither sandals nor shoes, but shoes were not unknown to the Assyrians even in the earliest period, for they were indicated on the feet of foreign tribute bearers as early as the Black Obelisk king, Shalmaneser.
